Focus on workplace wellbeing and employee communication and collaboration

BRIEF

WYG approached Interaction, the creative workplace design experts, when they moved to a new office space. They wanted to create an 'open plan' environment that reflected their focus on employee wellbeing. WYG's previous office was dated, cramped and didn't support their modern way of working. Teams were separated and there was a lack of social spaces making communication and collaboration difficult, so Interaction set about bringing people together.

SOLUTIONS

Working alongside Interaction, Bisley provided WYG with a variety of functional storage items. They required different sized storage with a pared back style, and our Essentials range provided the perfect solution. A printing and storage 'hub' centrally in the layout was implemented to allow easy discussions between employees and standing height storage was placed around printers and plotters to create extra work space.

RESULTS

The new office is bright, colourful and largely open-plan, with meeting and project rooms at either end of the floor. Flexibility and choice has been built in; hot-desking areas, sit-stand desks, acoustic pods and moveable meeting room walls all contribute to this adaptable and employee-friendly work place. Our Essentials range gave a simplistic look that ensured continuity throughout. All the products suite together perfectly, aiding sight lines throughout the office. The units also help to divide spaces naturally, making communication easier whilst retaining individual team spaces (Install by WYG).

“From a Project Manager’s view dealing with Bisley is always a pleasure. Even with last minute changes, requests are handled in such a positive manner that we can rely on the Bisley furniture being delivered on time and correct first time.”
